

„I have a dream“ Textarbeit zum Thema „Rassen(un)gleichheit in den USA“ (Klasse 9–10)

Ein Beitrag von Uli Nater, München

Am 4. April 2018 jährt sich die Ermordung Martin Luther Kings zum 50. Mal. Teilweise wurden die Anliegen des schwarzen Bürgerrechtlers umgesetzt; dennoch gibt es weiterhin Ungleichheiten zwischen Afroamerikanern und Weißen in den USA. In einer jigsaw reading activity erfahren Ihre Schüler mehr über die geschichtliche und aktuelle Situation. Sie analysieren einen Auszug der berühmten „I have a dream“-Rede und formulieren eine eigene gesellschaftspolitische Vision. Dabei eignen sie sich neuen thematischen Wortschatz an, trainieren ihr Leseverstehen und die Sprachfähigkeit.

How can you fight for your rights without violence<sup>1</sup>? Read and find out.

King's peaceful protests

Is the policeman going to beat you? ... or worse? Only two weeks ago, they shot a young man. A peaceful protester like you. You are afraid. And angry. Sometimes you wish you could fight back! But no, you must not. You know why, but it is so, so hard ...

5 After the end of slavery<sup>2</sup> in the USA, black people still did not have equal<sup>3</sup> rights.

① In the South, they even had laws<sup>4</sup> that oppressed<sup>5</sup> black people.

10 Martin Luther King was a black pastor and leader in the African American Civil Rights Movement<sup>6</sup>. He wanted equal rights for black people, but he did not want to use violence to fight for them. His role models<sup>7</sup> were Jesus Christ, who had said “love your enemies”, and Mahatma Gandhi, who had fought for Indian independence<sup>8</sup> using a method called “nonviolent<sup>9</sup> civil disobedience”.

15 Martin Luther King led many peaceful protests against racism. They organized sit-ins: black people entered and sat down in places where only white people were allowed. ② Or they marched<sup>11</sup> through cities without permission<sup>12</sup> from the (white) town councils<sup>13</sup>.

20 The police in the South often beat or tear-gassed<sup>14</sup> the protesters. King and other protesters went to prison several times for their civil disobedience. ③ What people all over the USA saw on TV vs white police and racists using violence and civil rights protesters being peaceful. It became clear that the racists were wrong and the protesters were right.

In 1963, during the March on Washington, King gave his most famous speech<sup>15</sup> – “I have a dream”. ④ The following year he won the Nobel Peace Prize. In 1964, 1965 and 1968, three new laws banned<sup>16</sup> discrimination in the USA.

On 4 April 1968, King was shot by a white racist and died in a hospital.

“I have a dream”

One of the most powerful speeches ever was given by Martin Luther King. People all over the world associate<sup>1</sup> the words “I have a dream” with him and his fight for racial equality. Read the most famous excerpts here.

The dream

On 28 August 1963 during the “March on Washington”, Martin Luther King called for an end to racism. 200,000–300,000 people participated in this march. Look at the photo: a huge crowd is listening to him!

A year later, discrimination based on race, skin color, religion, sex or national origin<sup>2</sup> was banned by law in the USA. King won the Nobel Peace Prize.

Here are the most famous of his words, which still inspire<sup>3</sup> people today:

“I have a dream that one day this nation will rise up, and live out the true meaning of its creed<sup>4</sup>: ‘We hold these truths to be self-evident<sup>5</sup>: that all men are created equal.’

I have a dream that one day on the red hills of Georgia, the sons of former slaves and the sons of former slave owners will be able to sit down together at a table of brotherhood<sup>6</sup>.

I have a dream that one day even the state of Mississippi, a state sweltering<sup>7</sup> with the heat of injustice<sup>8</sup> and sweltering with the heat of oppression<sup>9</sup>, will be transformed into an oasis<sup>10</sup> of freedom and justice.

I have a dream that my four little children will one day live in a nation where they will not be judged<sup>11</sup> by the color of their skin, but by the content of their character.

[...] I have a dream that one day, down in Alabama, with its vicious<sup>12</sup> racists, [...] little black boys and black girls will be able to join hands with little white boys and white girls as sisters and brothers.

I have a dream today!”
